These directions would assist us to provide those who will create the watersheds of the 21st century with the skills, richness of experience, and breadth of vision they will need to realize the potential for local, national and global cooperation. The recently established Leadership Group through its wider range of activities would address development needs of communities in Azerbaijan regions, encourage civic responsibility and participation of all members of community, promote grassroots development, networking, and coalition building among different stakeholders. Our work has a broad sweep due to our presence throughout the country (having branches, volunteers, permanent staff members, and partner organizations in most regions of country) and the diversity of the people we serve. Professional study tours, research programs, technical training opportunities and assistance, creation of mentoring networks, seminars, on-line dialogues, and numerous conferences are the primary tools we employ to reach our goals. A priority is to make leadership development activities more inclusive of those who are underrepresented.

PROMOTION OF MODEL OF COMMUNITY ACTIVE SCHOOLS AND DEVELOPMENT OF PTAS IN REGIONS OF AZERBAIJAN: October 2005-June 2006

Even more, in most countries there are special community active schools and PTA (Parent Teacher Associations) and in some others there are student activities committees exists and provides the full complementary activities to the school work. These models provide the assistance to school's activities in many different fields: education, health, democratization, financial support, general development, entertainment, art, culture, human rights, citizenship and etc. And these models implies the direct cooperation and joining the forces of parents, community members and teachers with and for children and not just the separate and alienated work of teachers and parents as seen in Parents Committees. There is no doubt that the child lives two different and complementary lives – School and Home/Community Lives. They differ in many aspects but only in their complementary existing and contribution child can develop the right way. And it is obvious that the Hosts of these two lives are different – Teachers in School and Parents/Community members in Homes, that is why there is a necessity of cooperation and joint work of these two groups of people playing most important role in life of any child must be complemented to each other and coordinated in most proper way. Parents being involved in various activities along side with their children provide the best model for acting for their children who are getting more interested in any type of work or educational activities to act together with their parents. The contribution of parents and community members are limited to bringing the child to schools and getting him back to home everyday and providing some limited opportunities for schoolchildren for community works. The cooperation of parents and teachers and community members to improve the education process and educational activities for the general development of children have been limited to the created in Soviet times – Parents Committees which can not pace the processes in nowadays life and nowadays world and do not meet the needs of school, children, community and education process. In order to promote the democratization in the schools, to develop the democratic decision making and improve the participation of children, parents, teachers and community members in the school life and also develop the financial independence of the school, Reliable Future is going to implement the pilot project in two regions of Azerbaijan that will be aimed at introducing and developing the model of community and parents involvement into the school life and school management.

The project is supported by Eurasia Foundation and USAID.

This project is the second phase of the parent-teacher-student-community cooperation development program initiated by Reliable Future, UNICEF and Ministry of Education in 2003. The main objectives of the project is to promote the parents involvement into school processes, improve school-family partnership, provide the platform for community involvement in the solution of school and education problems within the certain school. The phase II of the project covered 35 PTAs created during year 2003 by Reliable Future and 15 PTAs selected by Project Harmony within its own project in schools of Baku, Sheki, Gabala, Guba, Sumgayit, Shemakha, Gyandja, Ismayilli, Lenkoran, Mingechar and Masalli regions. During this phase, Reliable Future with UNICEF and Ministry of Education organized special advanced level training courses for the PTA Board of Directors from the above-mentioned regions on such issues as organizational management, NGO development, project writing and project management, financial resources, fundraising, accountability and transparency of resources, community involvement, etc. The special monthly bulletins has been produced during the project that gave an opportunity to project participants share their experience, skills, information as well as difficulties and obstacles they face in the process of PTA development with each other. The special TV programs within the project have been organized to promote the idea of creation of such PTAs in other schools of other regions of country. During the short 2-year period PTA model proved its efficiency and sustainability. The growing number of PTAs in schools of Azerbaijan required project partners to think about the structure that will assist with coordination of PTA development, promote the cooperation between PTAs and become the nation-wide voice for parents-teachers-students in Azerbaijan. It led to an idea to establish Azerbaijan National PTA that will unite all existing and future local school PTA around. And the first Founding Convention of National PTA had been conducted in October 23, 2004 with the participation of selected 100 representatives from 50 local PTA from regions and attended also by Minister of Education, UNICEF Representative in Azerbaijan. As the result of successful implementation of project, Ministry of Education of Azerbaijan Republic has issued a document that recognized the PTAs as the element of education reforms in Azerbaijan and advised to other schools to use the PTA model for the promotion of parents and community involvement and school-family partnership. Also according to the document, schools management has been advised to support and any technical assistance to parents' initiatives concerning the creation of such associations.

The project has been designed to provide the establishment of special computerized educational center with publishing equipment for mass production of book in Braille for blind children of boarding schools in Baku.

After the establishment of the Educational Laboratory, teachers and children (using the voice recognition function of the equipment provided by manufacturer) will be able to input the text to Microsoft Word or other program and immediately transfer it to Braille Alphabet using provided Windows Braille program and send documents to printer that can print over than 50.000 pages per year. It is for sure that this equipment will make enormous positive change and will promote the education and development of these children. It will help also to provide the rights of these children to education and information according to the Convention on the Rights of the Child. Project was funded by UNESCO Korean National Committee and UNESCO-KNCU fund.

FIRST FUNDAMENTAL ECONOMIC LIBRARY in AZERBAIJAN STATE OIL ACADEMY: 1999-2006

After the collapse of Soviet Union education system has suffered a lot, due to the breaking of linkages with "center" from where Azerbaijan has been receiving books, information, other literature, technologies, etc. The existing economic, social and political situation diminished the control over education by government, including the decreased expenditure for education, corruption in education system and other factors. The necessity to change the minds of growing population and orienting them to market economy required to renew the literature and information materials in libraries of all universities where the majority of books were dated by Soviet times and about Soviet model of economy and industry management. Although Azerbaijan has been independent for about 10 years a few steps have been taken in this regard. Due to this, Reliable Future established the first Modern Library Complex of Economic Literature in Azerbaijan State Oil Academy concerning the economics, market economy, management, agriculture, oil-gas industry, computer technologies and other sciences. Library collected more than 2300 books purchased from Russian Federation and other countries. Library has comfortable and well-refurnished reading room for about 25-30 readers. More than 2000 people from almost all high schools, Academy of Sciences, universities, companies and firms, banks and institutions of Baku and regions of Azerbaijan use the library. Chevron Overseas Exploration Ltd. kindly supported and funded this project.

BUILDING COMMUNITY PARTNERSHIP THROUGH LEADERSHIP EDUCATION & DEVELOPMENT IN GOYCHAY, UDJAR & ZERDAB REGIONS OF AZERBAIJAN: May-October 2004

The project was an innovative approach based on the results of the wide research provided by Leadership Development Group of Reliable Future that revealed the importance of community leadership education and development programs for diverse group of participants representing all the existing sectors in particular communities. This approach based on the findings that current programs running in Azerbaijan are targeting particular groups separately from others, i.e. NGOs, municipalities, local authorities, businesses, women, youth and children. Not doubt that such focused targeting is important for education and development of these groups individually. But because during these programs the representatives of these groups has not or limited opportunities to interact, work, cooperate with and get to know the feelings, thoughts and expectations of the representatives of other stakeholders, they fail to build successful partnerships inside the communities.

Therefore, Reliable Future has initiated this innovative project to pilot the joint leadership education and development program for representatives of all sectors or stakeholders within the communities for the future successful cooperation and partnership between these sectors and their representatives. The project supported by Democracy Commission of US Embassy in Azerbaijan included the organization of intensive training program for selected 30 participants from each region, including Goychay, Zerdab and Udjar representing all sectors of the community. These regions have been selected for piloting because they were estimated by Leadership group of Reliable Future as less considered and less involved by other programs running throughout the country. The training program was designed as succeeding and linked training modules combined with practical work during 1-3 months depends on the training needs. The practical work has been designated to be conducted in the communities and devoted to practice the knowledge and skills garnered during the training course. As the training course, the practice has been constructed to foster the cooperative work of representatives from all sectors of the community and assisting them to build successful and inter-depending partnerships. The issues of conduction of needs assessment, democracy, civil society, community development, transparency, accountability, use of local resources, coalition building and networking, decision making, women and youth participation, municipalities and their resources, organizational management and others have been discussed and delivered to participants. By the end of project, the cooperation and partnership between the representatives of all sectors had been joined within the Coordination Councils. The Coordination Councils helped to establish the permanently working structure with the members of all sectors of the community represented. The Coordination Councils became the bridge between the different sectors of the community. They gained an opportunity to get important level of recognition as the linkage within the community to solve any problems and overcome any obstacles on the way of community development through fostering cooperation and participation of all sectors. Another innovative approach used was the organization of small grants program for Coordination Councils by which they received an opportunity to practice the work of the council, test the partnership and see the potential benefits of the cooperative work.
